WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1744.

Extract from a Private Letter.

Franckfort, Auguſt 12, 1744.

'THE Politicks of the Imperial Court appear to have been much finer ſpun than could well be imagined. When the Emperor had loſt his Hereditary Countries, and was reduced to live on Subſidies from Foreign Courts, it was believ'd that he would have loſt his Intereſt in the Imperial Dyet; and that the Majority of the Princes and States would have had greater Regard to Power, than Title; and this ſeem'd ſo fully confirm'd by the Conduct of the Head of the Electoral College, in carrying to the Dictature the Proteſtation of the Queen of Hungary, that the Partizans of the Houſe of Auſtria concluded their Buſineſs done, and that his Imperial Majeſty's Authority was no more able to cope with their Influence in the Dyet, than his Forces were to withſtand their numerous Armies in the Field.

'But the Emperor's Counſellors, who are many of them the ableſt Civilians in Germany, undertook to ſhew him how all this Influence might be baffled; and ſo great an Intereſt raiſed in the Empire, as neither Force, nor Art, could overturn. They obſerved, that the Conſtitution of the Empire was extremely dear to many of the Princes of the Empire, from Motives of true Patriotiſm; and that the ſuggeſting the Danger of this Conſtitution, would be ſure to gain them. They obſerved, that as Chief of the Empire, there were many Things in the Power of the Emperor to grant, which ſome of the greateſt Princes in the Empire would be glad to receive; and that, by a prudent and well-tim'd Uſe of theſe, his Imperial Majeſty's Intereſt might be greatly ſtrengthned. They added alſo, that as there were many Diſputes among the Princes, the ſpeedy Decision of them, according to the ſtricteſt Rules of Juſtice, would, at once, heighten his Imperial Majeſty's Reputation, and fix thoſe who were Gainers by ſuch Decision, to his Party for ever.

'The Marſhals Thoring and Seckendorff, both able Statesmen, and both extremely gracious with oppoſite Intereſts, that is to ſay, Catholicks and Proteſtants, have likewiſe done him great Service; by repreſenting him, on the one Hand, as a zealous Defender of the Rights of the Church; and on the other, as a ſincere Lover of the Germanick Conſtitution, and extremely ſtrict, with regard to the Laws eſtabliſhed in favour of both Communions. In order to improve this, the Emperor has done ſome ſignal Acts of Juſtice to the Lutherans, and to the Reformed; ſo that, by theſe Means, an Intereſt was imperceptibly made amongſt Men of different, and even oppoſite, Sentiments.

'But the main Engine employed, and that which has operated with the greateſt Force, was their reviving the old Cant Word, of the Power of the Houſe of Auſtria. This they have rung with ſuch Succeſs, in the Ears of the Princes and States of Germany, that they have made them believe the ſimple Proteſtation of the Queen of Hungary, a Plot to dethrone the preſent Emperor, and reſtore the Imperial Dignity to that potent Houſe. This has revived all the old Jealouſies and Apprehenſions, of ſeeing the Imperial Power rendered hereditary and abſolute; the moſt diſtant Proſpect of which, is ſufficient to fright ſome German Patriots out of their Wits.

'While theſe Methods were practiſing with the Many, ſome more effectual ones were taken with the Few. Some great Princes were ſhewn, that their Hopes might be blaſted, their Expectations diſappointed, and their Figure much leſſen'd, if the Legality of the laſt Election was not effectually maintained, and the Emperor ſupported to his Wiſh. This gave Riſe to the late TREATY of UNION; all the contracting Parties in which may, without Breach of Truth, or good Mangers, be ſaid to be led by their private Views, into the warm Teſtimonies they have given of publick Spirit; but of this more hereafter, when that Treaty ſhall be ſubmitted to the View of the World.' In the mean time,

I am, SIR, Yours, &c.
